
Antwerp

Hotel Julien was one of the original boutique hotels that started the designer hotel revolution over a decade ago, and it's still one of Antwerp's best. You'll find Malin+Goetz products in the bathrooms, huge comfortable beds, Eames chairs, luxury sofas and homemade cake behind the well-stocked bar.

The roof terrace gives fine views over Antwerp's old city and a spa in the restored 16th-century cellars has a sauna and hamam, rainfall and waterfall showers and an ice fountain.

It is also the first Art Hotel in Antwerp and has a collection of fine art photography in collaboration with Fifty One Fine Art Photography, the only major art gallery in Belgium devoted exclusively to fine art photography of emerging and established photographers.
